WILLIAM CARR SENTENCED.

The Man Who Killed His Child Will Be Hanged.

EXECUTION SET FOR DEC. 17.

PROMPT DISPOSITION MADE OF ONE OF THE MOST INFAMOUS CASES ON RECORD.

HE DROWNED HIS DAUGHTER.

Because Her Stepmother Objected to Her Carr Took the Child and Drowned Her in the Missouri River.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LIBERTY, Mo., Nov. 15.—The gallows waits for William Carr, who drowned his little daughter Belle in the Missouri River, Oct. 10.

To-day he was sentenced to be hanged Dec. 17.

Promptly on the convening of court this morning Carr was brought from his cell by Deputy Sheriff Cave to the court-room and given a seat directly in front of Judge Broadus. He sat there throughout the time the court was passing sentence with head bowed. The judge called the case of the State of Missouri against William Carr and said that the grand-jury had indicted him by four counts for murdering his own child, Belle Carr, on Oct. 10, 1897.

To this charge he had pleaded guilty. Notwithstanding his admission of guilt the court felt it to be its duty to appoint two of the foremost attorneys, Judge Sanders and Col. Allen, to represent him, and had also heard evidence produced by the State and been convinced beyond all reasonable doubt that he was guilty as charged, and in obedience to the law and his duty, he would sentence him to be taken thence to jail and there safely kept until Friday, Dec. 17, when he would be taken to the gallows and be hanged by his neck until he was dead, and that God might have mercy on his soul.

The court-room was crowded during the rendition of the sentence, and the stillness was intense and only broken by the judge's voice as he spoke the fatal words. During the passing of the sentence Carr was apparently unmoved, showing no signs of emotion.

Carr was interviewed by the Post-Dispatch correspondent after he was taken back to his cell. He was busily engaged in drinking black coffee from a tin cup, having disposed of the regular jail dinner.

"Well, how do you feel, Carr, now that it is all over?" was asked. The prisoner stared intently into his cup as he answered: "Oh, I feel all right."

"Do you feel you were treated fairly?" "Oh, I suppose so. One can't do anything against no many. I might as well take my medicine. I am willing to hang, and I reckon I ought to hang."

In a pleasantly neat double cottage on North Garden street lives "Bettie" Carr, the wife of William Carr. She impresses the casual visitor rather favorably. Her face is not unprepossessing, and her manner, while decided to the point of being aggressive, is not bad. There is plenty of spirit peeping out of both voice and manner, but both are evidently kept fairly well in hand by the presence of strangers. Her black eyes snap as she talks. She was dressed in a common blue house wrapper and a brown checked gingham kitchen apron when seen by the reporter. Through the open door was seen the form of her five-year-old son, who is still sick in bed.

Mrs. Carr was told that Carr had been sentenced to hang.

"She evinced little emotion until asked about her own case."

"I don't want to talk about my case," she said, decidedly. "My train comes off at 12 o'clock, and I will tell my story then. I can say that I am entirely innocent, and know nothing of the murder he committed."

"What did you mean when you wanted Carr to take little Belle away?"

"I never said I wanted him to get rid of her, or that he must get rid of her. That is only a newspaper story. Like lots of other stuff that's been printed in the papers, I can say that I am entirely innocent, and know nothing of the murder he committed."

"There is plenty of room, lady!" "Move up in front!" "This is not a fire, but just one of the lines where men smoke, to the disgust of the ladies." "How to dress for a car ride."

BLOODHOUNDS ON THE TRAIL OF ASSASSINS IN GEORGIA.

THE FEROCIOUS MAN-HUNTING DOG. A Feature of the Pursuit of Criminals, Peculiar but Efficacious, in the South.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. FAIRBURN, Ga., Nov. 15.—The mysterious murder of Henry Turner, his wife and sister near this place last Saturday afternoon has thrown this community into a fever of excitement, from which it is not likely to recover soon. The triple murder was unprovoked, it seems, for none of the victims had any violent enemies, as far as known. Turner was a respectable farmer. He and his wife and sister were in a field at work shortly after noon. Turner was fired upon from ambush and killed. The two women started to run, but were also fired upon and fell with bullets in their heads.

The entire county was aroused by the terrible crime, and bloodhounds were placed on the trail of the murderer or murderers as soon as possible, but the search as yet has been unavailing. However, the authorities yet hope to accomplish good results and to round up the slayers of three captured, and the services of the dogs were not required. Hounds have been used considerably in North Carolina of late years. The city of Florence keeps half a dozen of them, and they are in great demand throughout the surrounding country. The city gets good pay for them whenever they are sent away, and revenue derived from this source is not inconsiderable. Besides this, the presence of the dogs in the city has acted as a deterrent to criminals, and the number of burglaries and incendiary fires has been minimized. Within the last year they have run down two murderers, who have been made to buy the penalties of their crimes at a price, and are sent anywhere on receipt of a telegram with the assurance that the price of their services will be paid.

The State of Kentucky keeps a number of bloodhounds constantly on hand at the Edgelyville penitentiary. About three years ago they helped run down three bandits, who robbed a passenger Ohio passenger train near Bardwell. On another occasion they followed a negro who had outraged and killed a white girl and murdered her younger sister at Wickliffe, near Bardwell, and finally located him in a box car at Sikeston, Mo. The negro was taken back to Kentucky and lynched.

Other services of a similar nature have been rendered by the official canine detectives of Kentucky. They are also kept in other Southern States, including North Carolina, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, but Kentucky, as far as known, is the only State that keeps them officially in connection with the penitentiary.

There can be no doubt that the hounds constitute a valuable adjunct to the judicial and executive machinery of any county or State. The unfailing scent makes them a terror to evil doers, and unless the trail is too cold it is almost impossible for a criminal to escape when once they are placed on his trail.

ENORMOUS HOSPITAL PATIENT

Mary Hathaway, Admitted Tuesday, Weighs 500 Pounds.

Mary Hathaway is the biggest patient in the City Hospital and probably the heaviest test that ever was there. Mary is coal black, 49 years old and weighs 500 pounds. That is not her normal weight, for she says when she is "in health" she does not weigh much over 300 pounds.

But Mary has been ailing for some time and the cause of her enlarged avoirdupois is, she says, that she has tried to keep a rooming house at 127 Chestnut street and Tuesday sent for an ambulance, which took her to the City Dispensary. She wanted Dr. Kearney to perform an operation there, but he would not do so and sent her to the Hospital.

She occupied the ambulance all by herself and had to sit flat on the floor between the seats.

GONE OUT OF BUSINESS.

The Delta County (Colo.) Bank Has Assigned.

DELTA, Colo., Nov. 15.—After a prolonged session the directors of the Delta County Bank concluded to suspend business and place the institution's affairs in the hands of an assignee. A. R. King was named for that purpose. The bank has been long regarded as one of the soundest on the Western slope.

An account has been put to work on the books, but a statement has not yet been issued. The stock of the bank is $50,000, and the deposits at this time, as near as can be learned, are $25,000.

SPANISH SAVAGERY HAS KILLED 300,000 HELPLESS CUBANS.

Despite Blanco's Order to Feed the Starving the Mortality Among the Reconcentrados Is Frightful.

PLANTATIONS BECOME GRAVEYARDS.

Whole Sections Are Almost Depopulated and in One Day, Nov. 10, at Guines, Six Hundred Persons Died of Hunger.

HAVANA, Via Tampa, Nov. 16.—Further investigation shows that the condition of the unarmed country and townpeople is worse than even the warbling truth first printed and proved by the Post-Dispatch.

It appears now that nearly 75 per cent of the 400,000 helpless women, children and non-combatants affected by Weyler's savagery are dead. Despite the orders issued by Gen. Blanco to feed the starving, the daily mortality of the remaining "reconcentrados" is frightful.

In Artemisa Parish, the church records show 8,000 deaths during the seventy-three years preceding this war. In one year of the infamous reign of Weyler, 5,125 persons were buried with church services and many without—and these dead victims of Weyler's hate were not rebels.

Horrible as is this plague of hunger, more terrible still to American women, will be the story of prostitution of innocent girls and children. Indeed, it is one of the saddest features of the plague. It has been to them either that or death. The priests tell me this.

The poor Cubans, however, have not been the only victims of this terrible war. Spain has paid for good treatment of her patriotic sons, but they have been robbed until, half starved and half clad, they have died like sheep in the alternate roasts and chills of Cuba's days and nights.

As near as can be conservatively computed from official figures, little more than half are left alive and well of the 180,000 vigorous peasant lads Spain sent to Cuba. The figures show that 32,000 died in hospitals, 12,000 on the field and 12,000 are still in the hospital. The others were sent home as "inutile." Of this enormous number, it is improbable that more than 5,000 met death or disability from Cuban bullets, during the real fighting of the invasion and the six months thereafter. The Cuban army has dwindled from 100,000 to about 30,000.

The rabid Spaniards, who believe that only by extermination of the Cuban race can this war be won, openly challenge the good faith of Gen. Blanco's statements as to his intention to feed and find work for those whom Gen. Weyler has not killed. They jubilantly claim that the new Captain-General is enforcing the barbarous "concentration" of the country people exactly as his predecessor did.

In the proportion of dead and in the barbarism which deliberately inflicted such torture upon the defenseless part of a people, starving Cuba is the worst spectacle ever presented, perhaps, in any age or stage of civilization. Ultra-Spaniards are right and if Gen. Blanco maintains even in a modified degree the imprisonment of the remaining thousands of destitute people within Spain's fortified towns, the spectacle will become even more revolting.

ONE VAST GRAVEYARD.

One of the best of the places where the pacificos were put on fortified plantations is the estate of "Central Suia," owned by the American citizen, Perfecto Sacoste. The actual figures of the death rate there show an almost unbelievable state of affairs. When the estate was fortified Sacoste allowed only the vigorous men whom he could use during the sugar season to remain. With their families there were 2,000 persons. To-day there are not 500 left. The 1,500 perished of hunger. There was no epidemic.

The creek banks are absolutely filled with the buried. There is not a square yard of ground about the forts that is not taken for a grave. Between two slabs of palm bark for a coffin each miserable skeleton has been buried a few inches under ground.

Usually in Cuba bodies are buried deep and the graves piled high with prickly bushes to keep away the dogs and vultures. They don't do it now. The bodies are scarcely worth the picking, and the dogs have all died, or as a still lively Cuban told me, "They are so weak they have to lean against the fence to bark."

To such an extreme has come the poor corralled starvers that the soldiers have had to force the living to bury their dead. To cut this year's cane laborers will have to be brought from Havana. There are not enough left alive and well even in the adjacent eight fortified towns to work this one plantation. Of the dead the great majority are whites. Indeed, the white country people of Western Cuba are extinct or will be so in three months, if not better cared for than by a Spanish soldier's coarse service ration.

SIX HUNDRED DIED IN ONE DAY.

A frightful story of Artemisa Parish has been told. Deaths there continue eight to ten per day. No food is being issued by the authorities, as there is none there. In Madrugá, during October 422 people died. The town had 3,500 inhabitants. At Guines there is shelter neither for the troops nor for the non-combatants, and both are dying fast. The "reconcentrados" have absolutely nothing to eat. In one day, Nov. 10, my informant states that 600 persons died—all presumably from hunger.

In one small house the Post-Dispatch correspondent found seventy persons. Two dead bodies lay on the earthen floor, uncovered. The packed living ones, most of them seated upon the mud, paid no attention to the dead. Despair and weakness made them indifferent.

At Trinidad the greater majority of the inhabitants have nothing left to eat. In Ysabel and Cuevitas it is the same. Almost all of the Guateros "reconcentrados" are dead.

In Pinar del Rio the correspondent of a Havana official paper states that "little children scratch with bloody fingers in the ground for the small roots of sweet potatoes, their mothers holding their miserable offspring to sterile bosoms."

The local Red Cross Society has its hands full caring for the Spanish soldiers, who deserve all that can possibly be done for them, so barbarously have they been robbed and exposed.

BLANCO'S HOPELESS TASK.

Gen. Blanco has entered upon an almost hopeless task in undertaking to protect the sugar plantations. To do so he must largely abandon operations against the insurgents. He has not enough soldiers to do both. It will take 12,000 to guard the sugar fields and mills. Of the 99,000 troops at his command, about 30,000 are guarding towns. About the same number are looking after railroads and trochas. These cannot be drawn upon, or the rebels can swoop down in a second invasion and the railroads will again be torn up.

The best-informed Cubans admit that disease and starvation have reduced the rebel army of able-bodied men from 100,000 to 40,000. The real figure probably is nearer 30,000. Still there are more than Blanco will have to send against them, and they are vastly better armed and have fifty times more experience than when they baffled the successive efforts of active Weyler to crush them with twice that number of men, taking one province after another.

A large proportion of the insurgents are in the bush. Many have sickened and starved, but far more have died in the towns in the same manner. Loyalty has meant sure death; disloyalty has offered a chance of life.

Gen. Blanco's first step surely will benefit the rebels or it is insincere. A. B. J.

MRS. NACK WILL TESTIFY AGAIN.

She Says That She Has Made Her Peace With Heaven.

HAPPIER SINCE CONFESSION.

HER TESTIMONY WILL BE CORROBORATED BY A NUMBER OF NEW WITNESSES.

THORN CLAIMS INNOCENCE.

Insists That Mrs. Nack Killed Guldensuppe Herself and Dismembered the Body of the Unfortunate Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—District Attorney Youngs of Queens County will be busily engaged during the present week in preparing the evidence to be submitted to the jury which is to try Martin Thorn, who is charged with the killing of William Guldensuppe, the Turkish bath robber, in the little Woodside cottage in June last.

The coming trial will differ somewhat from the one which was a week ago interrupted on account of the sickness of Juror Magnus Larsen.

The Sheriff of Queens County has drawn a new panel of witnesses and they must be in attendance in the Long Island City Supreme Court next Monday. It took but one day to secure the original panel, and Mr. Youngs and Mr. William F. Howe, Thorn's counsel, anticipate that the new jury will be secured inside of forty-eight hours.

If Mr. Howe admits, as he was compelled to do after Mrs. Nack went on the witness stand to testify against Thorn, that the body in the Morgue in this city is that of William Guldensuppe, then Mr. Youngs says that before the end of next week the entire evidence will be submitted to the jury and by the end of the week a verdict will be reached.

Mrs. Nack will again be a witness against Thorn. Mr. Howe is determined to place Thorn on the witness stand, and will endeavor to prove by his client that it was Mrs. Nack who killed her lover, Guldensuppe, and afterwards cut him up.

When Mr. Youngs was told that Mr. Howe's defense would be during the second trial, the District Attorney said that nobody would believe Thorn, because he, Mr. Youngs, was in a position to corroborate Mrs. Nack in every particular.

John Gotha, the Harbinger barber and former chum of Thorn, to whom Thorn confessed the murder, said that he was the star witness on behalf of the prosecution.

Mr. Youngs has also determined to further corroborate Mrs. Nack by examining Frank Clark, the forger, who is now locked up in the Tombs, and to whom Thorn, it is alleged, confessed how he shot Guldensuppe and how he cut him up and disposed of the remains.

Mrs. Nack says that she had been desirous of confessing her guilt for some time. She declares that the minister who visited her in the Tombs succeeded in converting her and that she is now anxious to prove to the people that she was led by Thorn to aid him in every particular.

"I know," said Mrs. Nack, "that there may be some persons who may be inclined to disbelieve the motive which induced me to appear against Thorn."

"It is true that there was a time when I loved Thorn. But that time has passed away. I have no other desire than to tell the exact truth as to my connection with the murder."

"I realize that for years and years I have been a bad woman, but I do not regret it. I have no fear as to the future, and as far as my body is concerned, I do not care whether I am compelled to-morrow to suffer the death penalty. For I know that I would then go to my Redeemer and that my soul has been saved."

Extra guards have been placed over these prisoners, and it is the Sheriff's intention to watch Thorn more closely than ever. His cell is searched daily, and the food he receives is inspected by the guards before it is handed to him.

Mrs. Nack is allowed more liberty than Thorn. She occupies a large, roomy

THORN'S OATH AGAINST MRS. NACK'S.

WHAT MRS. NACK SAYS.

Mrs. Nack says Martin Thorn planned the murder of William Guldensuppe.

She says that he hired the Woodside house and compelled her to pay for it.

Augusta Nack says that she begged Thorn to put away the idea of killing Guldensuppe.

She admits that she lured Guldensuppe to the house.

She declares that Thorn lay in wait and shot the man.

Augusta Nack says that Thorn compelled her to help him to tie up the body he had dismembered, and to scatter the parcels. It is true that Thorn learned the trade of barber in Germany, where they teach surgery as part of the course.

Augusta Nack admits that she lured Guldensuppe into the ambush and helped to dismember his body.

Augusta Nack says she has betrayed Thorn for conscience sake.

WHAT THORN SAYS.

Martin Thorn says Augusta Nack planned the murder of William Guldensuppe.

He says that she hired the house in Woodside, and forced him to help her do it.

Martin Thorn says that Augusta Nack thrust her finger into Guldensuppe's death because she feared he would betray her.

He declares that she lured Guldensuppe to the house.

Thorn swears that Augusta Nack shot the man from behind.

Thorn swears that Augusta Nack with surgical knowledge, easily dismembered the body, then forced him to help her scatter the parcels.

Thorn swears that the pistol the police found in Mrs. Nack's flat is the one with which she killed Guldensuppe.

Thorn swears that he knew of Mrs. Nack's murderous act, but helped her to dispose of the body because he loved her.

Thorn swears he will betray Mrs. Nack on the witness stand, because she first betrayed him.

the upper tier of the prison, and two "short-timers" are locked up with her.

No arrangements have been made as to what will be done with Mrs. Nack in case Thorn should be convicted of the murder of William Guldensuppe.

Thorn is again put on trial. If he goes on the witness stand he will deny that he killed Guldensuppe. He will swear that Mrs. Nack killed him. He will swear that she cut up the body. Mr. Howe, in cross-examining Coroner Thorn, suggested that the dismemberment of Guldensuppe's body must have been done by some one learned in anatomy.

Mrs. Nack in her studies in Germany, which qualified her to become a midwife, studied anatomy.

Why would Mrs. Nack desire Guldensuppe's death? The defense will allege that she feared to let her discarded lover live because he was burning for revenge and he knew of her illegal acts as a midwife, which would have been a disgrace to her.

It will be alleged that Thorn had no motive to kill Guldensuppe, because he had already supplanted Guldensuppe in Mrs. Nack's regard.

How will the prosecution corroborate Mrs. Nack's story?

A witness has been discovered whose testimony will be of the utmost importance in fortifying hers. This witness is Constantine Kechn, who used to work at the next door to Thorn in Vogel's barber shop, No. 835 Sixth avenue, near Forty-seventh street.

In Vogel's barber shop Martin Thorn became familiar with Constantine Kechn, whose testimony will be of the utmost importance in fortifying hers. This witness is Constantine Kechn, who used to work at the next door to Thorn in Vogel's barber shop, No. 835 Sixth avenue, near Forty-seventh street.

"Thorn was always a dreamy, moody fellow," said Kechn, "and I was sure Mrs. Nack didn't put Guldensuppe out of her house if she was tired of him, as she said that the woman was afraid of the big fellow, that he was a powerful man, and that he had threatened to kill both of them."

Thorn in time told Kechn of the beating Guldensuppe had given him.

"How to get rid of Guldensuppe was the one thing that Thorn thought of," Kechn continued. "Whenever he talked to me he would talk about this. He asked me if I knew where he could get hold of a bottle of arsenic."

"I told him my brother-in-law, Zeldis, a captain of police in Berlin, had given me a bottle of arsenic. Thorn was very anxious to see it, so I brought it to the shop. He wanted to buy it, but I wouldn't sell. He kept raising the price every day for three days."

"One day Thorn went down somewhere on the east side, I think it was in the Bowery, and he came back with a bottle. The bottle was eight or nine inches long and about an inch wide."

"I was a dentist in the old country. Thorn knew this and he was always asking me about different poisons. I told him to know how to give chloroform. I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel."

"I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel. I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel. I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel."

"I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel. I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel. I told him to hold it to the nose or on a towel."

MURDERED BY A HIGHWAYMAN.

Policeman Nicholas Hunt Shot By a Fleeing Robber.

THE MURDERER IS AT LARGE.

BRAVE OFFICER SLAIN BY ONE OF A DESPERATE TRIO OF BANDITS.

HE CAPTURED ONE OF THEM.

Robbers Held Up a Saloon at Jefferson and Scott Avenues, Then Had a Running Fight With Pursuers.

Policeman Nicholas Hunt of the Central District, who was shot by a highwayman Monday night on the Twenty-second street, near Chouteau avenue, died from his wound at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at St. Mary's infirmary.

The murderer and one of his companions are still at large.

Three robbers held up and robbed the saloon and grocery of Peter Heibel at Scott and Jefferson avenues.

Hunt captured one of the trio after an exciting chase and turned him over to the police.

He then pursued the other fugitives and in so doing lost his life.

About 8 o'clock Monday evening Heibel was reading a paper in his saloon. His wife, a woman of about 35 years of age, was seated at the bar, and a customer was seated at the bar.

Heibel's wife and a young man, who was seated at the bar, were talking to each other. The young man was a stranger to Heibel.

saloon and asked me if I would join them. They told me that they would get a big pile of money and would be sure to get away. I thought it over for a minute and said, "I will do it." They both had pistols. When we reached St. Louis we went to the Jefferson Avenue bridge. It was raining hard. We went under the bridge and got out our masks and pistols. We were only a short distance away. It was dark and we saw no one on the street. We put on our masks and drew our pistols. I told them that I was to guard the door and occasionally stick my head out to see if officers were approaching. I was to keep together and go to some quiet place and divide the money. I was to stay in the saloon and wait for the officers. I was to stay in the saloon and wait for the officers. I was to stay in the saloon and wait for the officers.

Sunday Clothes.

Every boy is supposed to have a SUNDAY SUIT. We have whatever is proper for dress occasion, and in the most becoming styles.

But we pride ourselves upon the sort of CLOTHES that boys like for SCHOOL and play, and that are serviceable as well as becoming. We don't regard our BOYS' and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING as a side issue. We put the same care into the selection of materials and into the making that we give to the Men's Suits.

No one else makes finer Suits for the Boys for as little money. We are having big sales in our Juvenile Clothing—novelties in Reefers, Top Coats and Ulsters, in Melton, Kersey, Irish Frieze, Fancy Chinchilla, and Blue, Brown and Green Astrakhan, for small boys, age 2½ to 10 years.

There is style, elegance and beauty in these goods not to be found elsewhere.

AN OPEN LETTER TO MOTHERS.

WE ARE ASSERTING IN THE COURTS OUR RIGHT TO THE EXCLUSIVE USE OF THE WORD "CASTORIA," AND "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," AS OUR TRADE MARK. I, DR. SAMUEL PITCHER, of Hyannis, Massachusetts, was the originator of "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," the same that has borne and does now bear the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on every wrapper. This is the original "PITCHER'S CASTORIA," which has been used in the homes of the Mothers of America for over thirty years. LOOK CAREFULLY at the wrapper and see that it is the kind you have always bought on the and has the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher wrapper. street. He was placed in the car that struck and taken as far as Morgan and Vandeventer avenues, where he was transferred to an ambulance from the City Dispensary. At his home a physician examined him and found two bad scalp wounds and serious internal injuries. A second ambulance was called and Stegmeyer was removed to the Baptist Infirmary on Taylor avenue. The injured man is 40 years old and married.

WARRANT FOR E. C. FRALEY.

Ollie May Causes the Arrest of Moses Fraley's Son. A warrant was issued Tuesday charging E. C. Fraley with malicious destruction of property. The fact that Fraley did his best to demolish the furniture in Ollie May's place on Chestnut street is old. The case was nolle prossed in the Police Court. Then Ollie May hovered about the warrant office and at last the Sheriff was instructed to arrest Fraley. But it has never come to the attention of the public that the Fraley who broke up Ollie May's house is the son of Moses Fraley of 440 West Pine boulevard, who at one time stamped the Chicago Stock Exchange, caused the bankruptcy of a dozen brokers and gathered for himself a fortune estimated generally at $5,000,000. Moses Fraley, who is now an insurance broker in St. Louis, then started about the erection of a million dollar palace in the Windy City. Before it was completed he lost every dollar. Then he brought his family to St. Louis and started the building of another fortune. This is the first trouble in which young Fraley has figured.

SMOKE NO NUISANCE.

AND THE SMOKE ABATEMENT ASSOCIATION IS OUT OF A JOB.

SUPREME COURT SO DECIDES.

Before a Conviction Can Be Sustained Actual Damages to Property Must Be Proven.

Smoke is not a nuisance. The Supreme Court of Missouri so decided Tuesday in the case of the City of St. Louis vs. the Edward Heltzberg Packing and Provision Co. The decision sustains the position taken by Judge Murphy and ex-Judge Morris, who held that individual damage must be proved and that smoke is not in itself a nuisance. The decision has the effect of nullifying the city ordinance defining smoke as a nuisance.

The opinion reads: "Now, smoke alone was not a nuisance per se at common law, nor has it been so declared to be by any statute of this State. The Legislature has defined what shall constitute a nuisance in this State by a general enactment, in these words: 'Every person who shall erect or maintain any public nuisance, to the annoyance or injury of any portion of the inhabitants of this State shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.' Section 18, R. S. Mo., 1888."

Secretary James Cox of the Citizens' Smoke Abatement Association was surprised when told of the decision. "We had reason to believe that the Supreme Court would find in our favor," he said. "The ruling will, I presume, put a quietus on the association. As a matter of fact we have done nothing in the way of smoke abatement since last April, when lack of funds caused the practical dissolution of the association."

"After re-electing the officers we adjourned since we had $14 in the treasury. We have not attempted to make any cases since. There are several cases pending, but Judge Stevenson has steadily refused to try them pending the decision of the appealed case before the Supreme Court."

During the two years it was in existence the association secured 30 convictions. Until recently the city employed three smoke inspectors at $100 a month each. They were let out of office when the Assembly failed to make an appropriation to carry them on the rolls.

MEEK IN NAME ONLY.

AND MISS ANNIE WASN'T THAT LONG AFTER HER STERN PARENTS' DIRECTIONS.

SHE IS NOW MRS. C. W. STIBAL.

Having a Will of Her Own She Married the Man She Loved, Even If He Did Sell Rum.

When pretty Annie Meek's father sternly forbade her accepting the attentions of C. W. Stibal, and urged her union with another less favored suitor, he thought he had completely shaped his daughter's future. But Miss Annie had a will of her own, and unbeknown to the strict parent, she met her lover, and inside of an hour her name was changed to Stibal.

The announcement of the union will be a surprise to the friends of the couple in South St. Louis. The happy bridegroom has prospered in the saloon business, and controls two houses, one at 1701 South Eleventh street, the other at 707 Gravoia avenue.

Mrs. Stibal is the 18-year-old daughter of John Meek, plasterer and contractor, at 1704 South Twelfth street. As a girl she and Stibal were sweethearts for years, but it was not until she became of age that her father took particular notice of the attachment. The fact that Stibal was a saloonkeeper produced him in the old man's eyes and he ordered his daughter to dismiss the young man.

At the same time, Mr. Meek urged the claims of another suitor, who had a long acquaintance with the family, and whose vocation was in no wise objectionable. Miss Annie didn't like the other fellow and told her father so. This enraged the old man and he closed his door against Stibal.

Miss Meek worked at Schultz's South Broadway store, and in the mornings and evenings had hurried chats with her sweetheart. When old man Meek's exclusion order went into effect Stibal suggested elopement, and Monday was selected as the day. Accordingly, Annie's employer received a note explaining her absence and saying she was then on her way to Revere Lewis' office for a marriage license.

The paper was issued and the two fled to their trysting place at the home of the bridegroom, 707 Gravoia avenue, receiving the congratulations of their friends and awaiting the message of forgiveness from the irate parents of the bride.

Christian Endeavor Union.

Friday evening the North End Division of the Christian Endeavor Union will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Grand Avenue Baptist Church, on Grand avenue, between Montgomery street and St. Louis avenue. Rev. Dr. W. W. Boyd of the Second Baptist Church will address the meeting, subject "Greater Errors." All persons, whether members of the union or not, are welcome. The annual business meeting of the division will be held Monday evening, Nov. 22, at the German branch of the Y. M. C. A., which the president and four delegates from each society will attend.

WEDDING BELLS RING.

ORTHEWEIN-HALL NUPTIALS ADVANCED ONE MONTH TO SUIT SOUTHERN RELATIVES.

THE CEREMONY IS TO-NIGHT.

Another Pretty Event Will Be the Marriage of Dr. Shoemaker and Miss Maxon.

The announcement of the wedding of Miss Edith Hall, daughter of Mrs. J. U. Hall of Westminster place, and Mr. Charles C. Orthewein of the firm of Charles F. Orthewein & Sons, grain exporters, which takes place at 7 o'clock this evening, has caused great surprise and no little excitement among society folk.

The wedding was set for the second week in December, but because of the presence in the city of Mr. Orthewein's brother, who is a yellow fever refugee from New Orleans, arrangements were hurriedly made to tie the nuptial knot a month earlier, in order that Mr. Orthewein's Southern relatives might be present at the ceremony.

The event will occur Tuesday evening, at the groom's residence, 2038 Park avenue. Rev. Dr. Burnham of the Pilgrim Church officiating. This will be a quiet affair, because of a recent death in the Orthewein family, and there will be no guests save the immediate families and a few intimate friends.

The bride will be handsomely decorated with pink and white tulle prevailing during the ceremony. The bridegroom will stand beneath a graceful canopy of pink and white tulle, mingled with pink and white carnations. The bride will be carried to the altar by a young man in a white tulle suit, and the bridegroom will be carried to the altar by a young man in a white tulle suit.

The wedding will be followed by a supper, to which none have been invited save the two families. Mr. Orthewein and his bride will leave tonight for the Blue Ridge Mountains, where they will pass two or three weeks before going to their future home in Kansas City, where Mr. Orthewein has important business interests. They will occupy apartments at the Coston House until they decide upon a suitable home.

Shoemaker—Maxon.

Miss Nella Maxon, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Maxon of 2903 Washington avenue, will be married at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening to Dr. William Alfred Shoemaker of this city. Rev. Dr. Cantrill will perform the ceremony at the Grand avenue Presbyterian Church in the presence of many society folk. The decorations will be pink and white, and the bride will wear a gown of white tulle, and the bridegroom will wear a suit of white tulle.

The two bridesmaids, Misses Lucia and Reia Maxon, who are the bride's sisters, will wear girlish gowns of white mousseline de sole and white satin, the bridesmaids will wear short puffed sleeves, and the bride will wear short puffed sleeves. The bride will be carried to the altar by a young man in a white tulle suit, and the bridegroom will be carried to the altar by a young man in a white tulle suit.

CHESTER KRUM'S KNOWLEDGE.

Case of Interest to Lawyers and the Judge's Statement.

The decision of Judge Klein, on the motion of David Boogher to have Judge Chester H. Krum disbarred in the case of Boogher vs. J. B. Johnson and William H. Stevenson, is awaited with a good deal of interest by attorneys.

Boogher claims that Judge Krum became possessed of much information of a confidential nature while acting as his attorney in the Criminal Court, and afterwards in a suit against J. B. Johnson.

Now that he is attorney for Stevenson in a suit of Boogher against Stevenson, Boogher wants him disbarred on the ground that it is against public policy to let him retain the case.

Judge Krum, who was sick when the motion was filed, said Tuesday: "My attention has been called to a court notice entitled 'He Knows Too Much,' which appeared in the Post-Dispatch of yesterday."

"There are some statements in the publication which are true; some which are not so. I do not represent both of the defendants in Boogher vs. Johnson and Stevenson. I do represent Stevenson. The defendants are jointly sued."

"As far as my appearing for Stevenson in the pending case is concerned, there is nothing to render it objectionable even upon the most excited ethical consideration. Stevenson directed the prosecution of Boogher, which I defended, yet when Boogher sued Stevenson by reason of such prosecution, and did not bring the suit and did not advise it, there was no reason why I should not appear for Stevenson."

"The article now commented upon states that after the proceedings in the Criminal Court were ended Boogher employed me to sue Johnson and Stevenson, and then revealed to me all the facts in his possession. This is not only untrue, but it is unduly flattering. My defense of Boogher in the criminal case must have been ingenious to the last degree when it was based upon facts which I did not obtain from any source."

"No wonder that Stevenson at once saw the need of securing in his own behalf a so brilliant and preternaturally accomplished lawyer."

Henry Stegmeyer Has Scalp Wounds and Severe Internal Injuries.

Henry Stegmeyer, a carpenter employed by Contractor Limberg, who is doing some work for the St. Louis Lead and Oil Co., was injured by a street car Tuesday morning on Manchester avenue, at the intersection of Sublette avenue, in front of the lead works.

About 7:30 o'clock Stegmeyer alighted from a Suburban street car going west. He walked across the car to cross the east-bound tracks so to go to work. He did not see a car approaching from the opposite direction, and he walked right in front of it.

Stegmeyer was knocked twenty feet to one side of the car down a ditch. When picked up he was suffering greatly, and asked that he be taken to his home at 235 Benton
